

Improving our performance through evaluation

"The What, the So What, and the Now What?"

So you want to do an evaluation ...but don't know where to start?

Evaluation helps us work out what works, what doesn't work and how we can do better. A three-day evaluation workshop is being held at WACRH on 12th-14th December 2022. The workshop will provide you with the knowledge and skills to plan a systematic evaluation.

Workshop Topics Include:

- How to design an evaluation and create a comprehensive evaluation plan.
- How to tell your program's story with evidence.
- Why engaging with First Nations communities throughout an evaluation is critical to success.
- Strategies to develop program logic maps and theory of change diagrams to guide evaluation.
- Identifying design options and data collection methods.
- Creative ways of reporting evaluations.

About the Facilitator

Dr Delwyn Goodrick will facilitate an interactive, practical and fun workshop to illustrate evaluation concepts. You will gain skills that can be applied in your work and in the community.

Dr Goodrick has a wealth of experience in program evaluation and is a gifted teacher and facilitator. She has an excellent understanding of the Midwest context and has supported WACRH in some of their previous evaluation work.

Some of her previous evaluation areas are very relevant to issues in rural WA, for example the Aboriginal Family Violence 10 year plan (mid term review), Turnaround Schools (NZ), Evaluation framework for Te Hau Toka (community wellbeing), Reducing re-offending strategy, Respectful Relationships and evaluation of the First Nations Gambling Awareness program.
